Teachers and learners can upload contributions to the app on relevant topics they have developed during the International Week and before. The importance of remembering and the importance of not forgetting are linked together in order to create a digital event that encompasses both local and global dynamics. The forms of remembering expand to recognize projects in the present that embark on a common search for traces in a pluralistic society now and in the near future. Searching traces and creating new ones with one's own life being open minded, reflexive and emphatic is shared via the Webapp.

We will talk together about the content to be elaborated and upload what is already compiled on the Webapp.

FILM/PHOTO PRESENTATION WITH DISCUSSION

Topic: Students against oblivion and for democracy: Presentation of the international participative WebApp “footprints for freedom - united against antisemitism, racism and hate.”

Speaker(s): Cooperation of „Schüler gegen Vergessen und für Demokratie“ /students against oblivion and for democracy“ of Lichtenbergschule - Gymnasium Europaschule and Protestant University of Applied Sciences, Darmstadt (Margit Sachse und Claudia Maier-Höfer)

Presentation of the international participative WebApp “footprints for freedom - united against antisemitism, racism and hate.”

From working out the history of the Holocaust, to making Jewish life recognizable in the present, attention is drawn to the dynamics of exclusion, hatred and violence that became visible in attacks in Germany in Hanau and Halle. Session I A: Tuesday, 18th May 2021, 07.30 – 09.00 a.m.

LECTURE

Topic: Social work technologies aimed at integrating children from families of internally displaced people

Speaker(s): Madlen Mikayelyan & Zara Grigoryan, Vanadzor State University after H. Tumanyan, Armenia

Currently, there are internally displaced people living in Armenia, who for different reasons left their homes and moved to a permanent place of residence in Armenia. For the most part, these are large families that face numerous problems, one of which is the integration of the children of these families in a new society. Such families need professional help of different specialists, including social workers. In our lecture we introduce some technologies of social work aimed at integrating children from families of internally displaced people.

Session I B: Tuesday, 18th May 2021, 07.30 – 09.00 a.m.

LECTURE

Topic: Issues of spatial thinking formation in psychological theories of learning

Speaker(s): Margarita Shahverdyan, Vanadzor State University after H. Tumanyan, Armenia

With the change in the paradigm of education, some popular teaching theories that offer different ways of shaping and developing the thinking of schoolchildren (associative-reflexive, the theory of the gradual formation of mental actions, the concept of types of generalization in teaching) acquired a new meaning. In the theories analyzed, the cognition process is presented as a process of synthesis of the results of activity. In contrast to the above mentioned theories, we propose to consider the process of formation of mathematical concepts through the analytical method of cognition in teaching, which makes the student involved in the process of “genetic” development of the concept. Today, when the process of technologization of education is underway, the application of this approach is becoming more and more relevant.

Session I C: Tuesday, 18th May 2021, 08.00 – 09.30 a.m.

SEMINAR

Topic: Formation of church ministers: Field education programme at TCL Sri Lanka

Speaker(s): Rasika Abeysinghe & Nadarajah Arulnathan, Theological college of Lanka, Pilimalalawa, Sri Lanka

We are looking forward to present the field education programme of our college. At our theological college, we have a comprehensive field based education system which is aimed at developing the affective and behavioural skills of our prospective ministers. It is in three parts, the first a college based field education where students engage in clusters that are essential to the functioning of college. Secondly the students engage in a four tiered training programme mostly on weekends, which are aimed at parish, caring, pioneering and ecumenical training. And thirdly they are given the possibility of choosing one area of both secular and theological importance and spend a long time on it researching it. Through this programme we hope to build relationships with the outside society and our theological college, we also attempt to reach out to communities that are usually deemed as voiceless or helpless. Also in this process we engage the student to put to practice the spirituality that is 'learned' in the class in practical work. The end goal is to make a minister who is capable of dealing with any situation, person or group that we can encounter in the local context. It makes our students break comfort zones and move beyond from who they enter the college as, they are called to remake and renew themselves in service and mission, we also expect them to develop an attitude where they must seek reconciliation regardless of colour, race, background, class, upbringing or any other divisive element.

Session I E: Tuesday, 18th May 2021, 09.00 – 10.30 a.m.

TALK/DISCUSSION

Topic: Creating space for the people in need. Housing first for families in Brno, Czech Republic

Speaker(s): Gábor Oláh, University of Ostrava, Czech Republic

Topic: Greece and the dilemma at the European external border

Speaker(s): Nektarios Stellakis, University of Patras, Greece

Until 30 years ago, Greek society identified itself as relatively homogeneous: one language, one culture, one pride in its past. Under the surface, of course, there were many different groups, but the narrative stood. During the 1990s, Greece received many migrants who gradually integrated into society. The organization of the 2004 Olympics were recognized as a success story. A few years later, in 2009, the European financial crisis resulted in severe consequences for most marginalized groups. In the midst of the financial crisis, about one million people arrived in the country with the intention of traveling to Central and Western Europe, referred to as the "refugee crisis". All these events have questions for citizens*, political parties, artists*, religious groups and of course teachers, parents and children. The (Greek) word "dialogue" can serve as a lighthouse to help Greek society to follow a humanistic, democratic, respectful and solidary path, free from "barbarism" (a Greek word for the non-Greek). Main axon is "dialogue, respect and democracy against racism, barbarism, fascism". I will explain many examples of both extremes in order to present the conflict of narratives to the students, thus providing an opportunity to discuss the role of education in times of crisis.

STUDENT PROJECT/RESEARCH PRESENTATION

Topic: Diaconia and aging: Experiences from United Evangelical Mission-UEM

Speaker(s): Rev. Godwin Ampony & Rev. Matthias Börner, United Evangelical Mission - UEM, Germany

The world is increasingly experiencing population ageing, a phenomena which is being observed both in the global north as well as the global south. While some governments particularly those in the global north are taking action to meet the changing demographic pattern in ageing, same cannot be said by the global south governments. Absence of strong welfare system targeted at the elderly remains a major challenge. Many Governments in the global south likewise Churches and diaconical institutions are not in a better position of meeting the needs of population ageing. The research is aimed at developing a diaconal response to ageing which is a growing global phenomenon but have more with local and contextual implications. Expected findings and results is to equip diaconia institutions and churches in designing and implementing Ageing Programmes and Projects in local context. The research as an ongoing work has employed combination of different research approaches including; Action Research, Case Study, Qualitative, Quantitative, Survey, and Narrative inquiry and stories. Findings and results of the research would be presented in an International conference in October 2021 in Sri Lanka and later published.

The empirical data on which the research is based on is from the World Population Perspectives: 2019 Version. The population outlook forecast that globally by 2050, one (1) in six (6) people in the world will be over age 65 (16%), up from one (1) in eleven (11) in 2019 (9%). Its further projects that by 2050, one (1) in four (4) persons living in Europe and Northern America could be aged 65 or over. From 2010 population ageing was estimated at 43 million, the population of elderly people in sub-Saharan Africa is projected to reach 67 million by 2025 and 163 million by 2050. In the case for Asia content, it is expected that by 2050, one in four people in Asia and the Pacific will be over 60 years old. WORKSHOP

Topic: Trans*Care – Self-determination of gender in childhood and the ethics of listening

Speaker(s): Claudia Maier-Höfer, Protestant University of Applied Sciences Darmstadt, Germany

Self-determination of gender is expressed in a singular way. This is a challenge for listening to on the part of adults. An ethical-aesthetic reception is linked to a rationality that adults elaborate in their own ways of thinking and what they want to change about themselves and their position in the structures. The transformation of social practices emerges from these moments as "lines of flight and resistance" that emanate from young people who determine their own gender. This approach of post-structuralism is given space in the discourse to expand the ontology of gender assignment and creative practices in kindergarten, school and social work.

FILM PRESENTATION + DISCUSSION

Topic: Equal opportunities? - Biographies of young refugees in poems and prose

Speaker(s): Cooperation of students against oblivion and for democracy, Lichtenbergschule and Protestant University of Applied Sciences Darmstadt, Germany (Margit Sachse und Claudia Maier-Höfer)

Barriers that young people experience when they are born or arrive in a host country and continue with their learning are put into words by themselves. A language for education must be developed quickly enough. It is the national language that is first experienced from a distance and in the context of discrimination and exclusion in a subject called "German as a Second Language" / DaZ outside the normal classroom for all students*. These stories of language learning have no lobby because only the outcome is expected.

As part of a writing-art project of the Hessian Ministry of Culture, Dilek Güngür worked with students in Darmstadt to create an approach not only to language, but also to the particular stories of education and their reflection on the part of the students. In prose and poetry they present and share these stories. They also share their experiences with language learning and education by now working in tandems with younger students to help them enter the German education system. "Raise your voice" is the motto they pass on to the younger ones. Participating in the shaping of equal opportunities and setting an example means not allowing girls and boys with a migration background to be left alone with the structural inequality of opportunities and their fear of not being enough, and to be discriminated against.

The texts of the students are compiled in a film in English and German with English subtitles. Afterwards, the writers will be available for discussion.

STUDENT PROJECT/RESEARCH PRESENTATION

Topic: „Leaves don't shine into the sun“* - doing art between participation and exclusion

Speaker(s): Elke Schimpf und Anja Göbel, Protestant University of Applied Sciences Darmstadt, Germany

We will present the results from a B.A. thesis that dealt with the possibilities and boundaries of doing art, in relation to extended empowerment of the addressees of social work against a background of social exclusion and ambivalent experiences of belonging.

A focal point for us is to make people with impairments have their say and be taken seriously.

So in our presentation we will focus on ethnographic observations carried out during the research in artists' groups, in a facility where people with impairments live and work. We will present works of artists with impairments that demonstrate their experiences with and thoughts concerning exclusion, or not-belonging and belonging.

We would be happy to share and discuss perspectives and the consequences of different actions for social work, in relation to how to shape artistic offers to be a resource of empowerment and create spaces of belonging for their addressees.

LECTURE

Topic: Technologies for active aging in social work with the elderly

Speaker(s): Olga Vericheva & Ekaterina Vasilkova, Kostroma State University & Zavolzhsky boarding house for elderly citizens and disabled people, Russia

Population aging is generally recognized as one of the main global challenges to socio-economic development. At the same time, in recent decades, the world has seen a transformation of the perception of aging from an acutely negative to a balanced one, taking into account not only the problems arising from the change in the age structure of the population, but also the opportunities that open up in the spheres of consumption, lifestyle and quality of life, economic, social and political activity, and also education. Active aging, formulated in 2002 in the World Health Organization's Framework for Active Aging, describes "the process of optimizing opportunities for health, community participation and human security to improve the quality of life as we age". Active aging technologies are aimed at developing and realizing human potential, which is based on an increase in life expectancy. The lecture will consider the forms and methods of creating conditions for the continuation of a productive and independent life by all citizens, while simultaneously mobilizing the potential of an aging society for its continuous sustainable development.

Topic: Female church ministers in a patriarchal society: example of deaconesses in Batak-church Indonesia

Speaker(s): Tioria Sihombing, Huria Kristen Batak Protestan-Indonesia

Ludwig Ingwer Nommensen is known as the “Apostle to the Bataks” for his successful ministry to bring Christianity to the Bataks. Almost all her members belong to Batak Toba-ethnic. Batak is the fourth bigger ethnic group in Indonesia. Therefore, understanding this church is impossible without its relation to the patriarchal culture of Batak.

The first female pastor was ordained 1986, while male pastor 1885. The church accepted the ordination of “Bibelwoman” in 1935. The first ordination of Deaconess took place in 1983. Her task emphasizes on social work of the church. The first deaconesses of the church were educated in Kaiserswerth Germany and some were blessed as Deaconess there. These sisters started the deaconess work in the Batak-Church bringing some “traditions” they have learned during their school time in Germany, such as a community of “single women” which was founded 1961 and the presence of a “Mutterhaus” built in 1964. Both traditions are not common in Batak-society!

Later, the work of these sisters has led to a bigger community of deaconess opened to single and married deaconesses. Beforehand, only single women could be ordained as deaconess. Currently 70% of them have family. The involvement in various diaconic fields of the church.

This presentation will introduce and discuss some chances and challenges faced by the deaconesses of the Batak-Church with two focuses: history and organizational development.

POSTER PRESENTATION

Topic: Formation of tolerance of primary schoolchildren in the context of extracurricular activities

Speaker(s): Tatyana Sutyagina, Kostroma State University, Russia

Younger school age as the most important period of human psychosocial development. At this age, the child is included in adult life, forms his identity and assimilates various social roles. His global life orientation depends on how he will relate to the world in general, to himself and others in this world. An attitude of tolerance and trust is the foundation of human coexistence, not conflict. The affirmation of the spirit of tolerance in the school, the formation of an attitude towards it as the most important value of society is a significant contribution of school education to the development of a culture of peace on Earth.

Raising a tolerant personality is a complex process carried out by the entire social reality surrounding the child. It is the teacher who plays a huge role in educating the child in the spirit of tolerance. But this does not happen spontaneously. For it to be purposeful, it is necessary to create an organized pedagogical activity in the classroom, full-fledged work of a teacher with students. The primary school teacher is faced with the task of fostering tolerant principles of interaction in children, that is, not innate, but developing, undergoing stimulation and correction.

In extracurricular activities, the student's position changes significantly: indirect pedagogical guidance replaces the teacher's indirect pressure on the student through interaction with the student collective, which increases the activity of students in all types of activities.

In primary school, teachers must uphold and embody the values of tolerance that foster the successful interaction of each child in the school community, the social adaptation of children and the development of the ability to resist intolerant relationships.

PRESENTATION

Topic: To know each other is to act together - A meeting of women as progressive religious representatives from Germany and France

Speaker(s): Château d'Orion and team, France

Societies in crises. Forced migration and displacement of peoples combined with the fear of becoming 'alienated' - these matters are exacerbated by the conflicts of different traditions coming together. Violence motivated by religion has increased in the past decade; acts of terrorism, islamophobia and antisemitism are on the rise across Europe. The close proximity of various religious groups have been integral to this phenomenon. How can these same groups promote a peaceful social coexistence and provide a meaningful contribution to future-oriented thinking and action?

By making a documentary movie we will look for ways of transforming inter-religious hatred into understanding. To this end, we have invited four women from France and four women from Germany who are highly engaged in their religious institutions or association of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish or Islamic belief.

In autumn, these eight representatives of liberal and progressive beliefs from Germany and France will meet in Château d'Orion, a cultural centre of vibrant intellectual encounters located in southwestern France. Captured on camera by the documentary makers, they will confront themselves and one another with topics like: Peaceful coexistence, migration, gender equality and fighting racism and religiously motivated violence. Over the course of the week, they will be inspired by excursions in the region to sights of religious significance, such as the internment camp in Gurs and the Protestant museum "Jeanne d'Albret" in Orthez. Further, they will be introduced to local religious figures.

The documentary movie will not only capture the encounter, it will also tell the stories of courageous women who dare to overcome social divisions through their religions in order to search for solutions and new ways of cooperating.

Laura Zentek is part of the organising team, she will give the presentation on the project.

In my church (The Evangelical Lutheran Church in Tanzania, North Eastern Diocese ELCT - NED) Congregations see their ministry as limited to preaching. LECTURE

Topic: Growing sustainable (digital) networks to support the elderly

Speaker(s): Michael Vilain & Matthias Heuberger, Protestant University of Applied Sciences Darmstadt, Germany

Individual social networks are a natural but rarely well reflected part of everyday life. As we grow older not only do our mental and physical abilities change. Also size and support capacity of personal networks decrease in old age, leading to growing isolation and loneliness. As recent studies show this can result in a loss of quality of life, a rise in multimorbidity or mental disorders. Hence, forms of rebuilding personal networks can contribute to the living situation of the elderly.

This lecture reflects a research project the IZGS conducted for the Federal Ministry of Education and Research (Germany) between 2016 and 2020. The results from two investigation areas show that it is possible to generate new sustainable and partially digitally organized personal caring- and sharing networks under certain circumstances.
